A simple story, told in a simple way, of a simple life among simple people, in the great open space, far from the clammer and glammer of the busy bustling city. Xavier dog was a tricky fisherman that caught fish by throwing rocks over a cliff, and causing the fish to jump up, then he caught them in his net. Everthing worked fine until he caught a whalewhich dragged him into the river, then a school, of whales play ball with him.

Right nearby the cat and mouse company were also fishing. Douglas Cat puts a helmet on Maurice Cat and sends him down to look around. He manages to stir up all sorts of trouble. However he manages to entice a large fish to take ahold of Doug's hook. Doug has a lot of trouble landing his victim and then knocks the farmer into the water. This makes the farmer sore and he kicks the cat around. Two minutes later Maurice has a nice fat octupas hooked up. This also lodges on the farmer and sends him running. He stumbles into a cop, the octupas vhasess the cop away. Farmer Al comes staggering back and kicks the cat into the water. Then they start to fish again. Their hooks become fastened and the cat pulls the farmer into the water, then steals all the fish and runs away followed by Farmer Al. Aescop proves to us that: " He who holds on to the bitter end will lose his shirt".
